About Mt. Adams Institute

Mt. Adams Institute \(MAI\) is a nonprofit organization based in the rural community of Trout Lake, Washington with a mission of strengthening the connection between people and the natural world through education, service learning, career development, and research. MAI's programming serves youth, adults, veterans and families in a variety of formats that embraces equity, diversity and inclusion. MAI is working to create opportunities to connect individuals with the natural world and to support those who are historically underrepresented in outdoor recreation and natural resource career fields.

Land Stewards is a career development program for young adults, ages 21-30, interested in learning more about public lands and natural resources management. The Land Stewards program places participants in a 25-week internship with agencies like the Forest Service, Fish & Wildlife Service and environmental nonprofits throughout Washington and Oregon.

Position Summary

In partnership with the Mt. Adams Institute (MAI), the technicians will spend the service term removing invasive species that threaten the native flora and fauna of the Glenwood valley. Located in the remote and beautiful Conboy Lake National Wildlife Refuge, this field-based position is perfect for a person who has a passion for wildlife and is interested in learning more about management practices to protect and conserve endangered species. The position will alternate between hands-on conservation activities and office-based data recording. Successful candidates will need to be highly self-motivated to serve independently and on a team.

The Conboy National Wildlife Refuge is located in the small town of Glenwood, WA – population 500 people. Glenwood is 45 minutes from the larger towns of White Salmon, WA and Hood River, OR. It is two hours from Portland, OR. Interns live on site of the Refuge and can expect quiet nights, incredible views of Mt. Adams, access to recreational activities such as hiking, climbing, biking and kayaking, and first-hand experience with life in a rural Western town.

Essential Functions

To include, but not limited to:

- Conduct bullfrog control using various methods such as egg mass removal, tadpole netting, and adult capture (including spending some nights capturing bullfrogs by hand in wetlands). Lethal control of invasive species is a regular part of this position.
- Conduct eDNA and auditory surveys for a long-term bullfrog survey with the USGS.

- Set and remove fyke nets in designated areas daily to capture invasive species (bullfrogs and brown bullhead catfish) that predate on the Oregon Spotted Frog. Gather environmental data at fyke net locations.
- Sort catch in fyke nets and count and measure invasive species removed from fyke nets. Lethal control of invasive species is a regular part of this position.
- Conduct invasive plant removal work to assist with meadow encroachment projects.
- Assist with other refuge projects such as biological surveys, reducing cattle trespass, and public events.
- Maintain and repair field gear as needed.
- Attend and complete all MAI/AmeriCorps trainings and service requirements including orientation, career training, and graduation.
- Complete and submit all necessary MAI/AmeriCorps paperwork and reports in a timely manner.
- Wear MAI identifiers and required safety gear while performing service or attending official events.

Position Requirements

Service Site

- Must have a valid driver's license, clean driving record and ability to provide documentation.
